

History of The Bath County Squadron

By Col. A. C. L. Gatewood (1843-1919)

(16th in a series of articles originally published in The Bath News in 1895-96.)

About the 15th of February, 1863, the 17th Battalion of Cavalry was formed into a regiment by the annexation of Co.'s "I and K" and was afterwards known as the 11th Virginia Cavalry. This regiment consisted of ten companies as follows. Company "A", Capt. Myers of Berkeley county; Co "B", Capt. W. H. Harness of Hardy county; Co "C", Capt. Harper of Rockingham county; Co. "D" Capt. E. H. McDonald of Hampshire county; Co. "E", Capt. Hess of Shenandoah county; Co. "F", Capt. A. J. Ware of Bath county; Co. "G", Capt. Foxhall A. Dangfield of Bath county; Co. "H", Capt. Pierce of Frederick county; Co. "J", Capt. W. D. Hall of Fairfax county; Co. "K" Capt. Weems of Alexandria county. At the organization of the 11th Va. Cavalry O. R. Funsten was appointed Lieut. Colonel and M. D. Hall, Major. At the same time Lt. A. J. Ware was promoted to the of the squadron wounded in this engagement. It was the pleasure of the 11th Regiment to meet and capture the same Federal Regiment at Jeffersonton in Fauquier county in October 1864, when an old dutch captain said, "Mine Got, ve can't go any-vere but dish d--n 11th Regiment is after us."

The officers and men of the two regiments got pretty well acquainted with each other during their captivity. Your correspondent has at this time a fine sabre captured from an officer of this regiment at Jeffersonton. This was the first engagement of the 11th Regiment after it's organization into a regiment. It returned to camp that night with its booty consisting of between 200 and 300 prisoners with their horses, bridles, saddles and small arms highly flushed with victory. After recovering from the long race on the 26th General Jones moved his Brigade up the Valley to Kratzers Springs, five miles north of Harrisonburg where it remained in peace and quietude until the spring

Capt. Hampshire county; Co. "E" of Shenandoah
 Capt. Hess of Shenandoah county; Co. "F", Capt. A. J.
 Ware of Bath county; Co.
 "G", Capt. Foxhall A. Dangerfield of Bath county; Co.
 "H", Capt. Pierce of Frederick county; Co. "J", Capt.
 W. D. Ball of Fairfax county;
 Co. "K" Capt. Weems of Alexandria county. At the organization of the 11th Va.
 Cavalry O. R. Funsten was appointed Lieut. Colonel and M. D. Ball, Major. At the same time Lt. A. J. Ware was promoted to the rank of Captain of Co. "F", 2nd Lieut.
 Henry McClintic to 1st Lieutenant. A. C. L. Gatewood was unanimously elected 2nd Lieutenant and H. Moffett Poague, Brevet 2nd Lieut. On the morning of the 26th the picketts reported to our camp near Edinburg that the enemy were advancing up the Valley. The bugle sounded boots and saddles and the regiment was soon on that splendid throughfare, the Valley pike, marching at a quick pace eager to meet the foe.

Between Edinburgh and Woodstock we met and engaged the 13th Penn. Cavalry. After a short and sharp contest the command to draw sabre and charge was received. The rebel yell was given and the boys went for them with a vengeance. They soon gave way in utter confusion and the rout was complete.
 The 11th Regiment charged them for a distance of ten miles, capturing nearly the entire regiment. Charles Hamilton of Co. "D" and Henry Lange of Co. "G" were killed and two or three others

Staunton. This was the first engagement of the 11th Regiment after it's organization into a regiment. It returned to camp that night with its booty consisting of between 200 and 300 prisoners with their horses, bridles, saddles and small arms highly flushed with victory. After recovering from the long race on the 26th General Jones moved his Brigade up the Valley to Kratzers Springs, five miles north of Harrisonburg where it remained in peace and quietude until the spring campaign opened.

Mitchelltown

Personals

Mr and Mrs. Carl Harouff were dinner guests of Rev.
 and Mrs. Glenn Harris Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Carpenter were visitors in Staunton Friday.

Mrs. Kenneth Hayes has returned to her home in Huntington, W. Va. after spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs.
 Forest Carpenter.

Mrs. Viola Williams is a patient in the Community House. Others who have been on the sick list are: Little Miss Tessie Woodzelle and Miss Hazel Ann Hoover.

Bootsie Berry is able to be out after being confined to his home for several days
 due to illness.

Miss Ann Williams spent the weekend with Miss Sallie Mines at the Vine Cottage Inn.

003-DSC01573.JPG

BACK SEAT
BLETS

LIBERTY THEATRE

Hot Springs, Va.

THURSDAY

FEBRUARY 3

'Old Yeller'

Dorothy McGuire and Fess Parker

Color—Melodrama

News

FRIDAY

FEBRUARY 4

'The Arizona Rangers'

Audie Murphy and Gloria Talbot

Western—TC—TS

News

SATURDAY

FEBRUARY 5

'Young Dillinger'

Nick Adams and Mary Ann Mobley

Melodrama—B&W

Cartoon

News

BACOVA CHAPEL, which has been a chapel of Warm Springs Presbyterian Church, is to become a community center serving the people of the western Bath County village of Bacova. For story, turn to page 9.

—Recorder Photo

Picturesque Bacova Chapel Will Be Community Center

BACOVA - Bacova Chapel will become a community center for the people of this western Bath County locality under an agreement approved last month by the Lexington Presbytery.

For most of its 40-odd years of existence, the picturesque white frame church with green shutters has been a chapel of Warm Springs Presbyterian Church, under the authority of the Warm Springs session.

Open House to Honor Golden Anniversary

MONTEREY - Mr. and Mrs. Glen Hammer will be honored by their family at an open house at the Hammer home on Sunday, May 21, from 2 to 5 p. m.

The occasion, originally scheduled for Feb. 27 but postponed because of illness, will celebrate the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Hammer.

Bath, Highland HD Members Attend Meet

FISHERSVILLE - Bath and Highland Home Demonstration members attended the annual meeting Wednesday at the Woodrow Wilson Rehabilitation Center here of District VII of the Virginia Federation of Home Demonstration Clubs.

Mrs. Jimmy Jack of Highland County led the group in the pledge and creed. Entertainment was provided by the following Bath County 4-H members - Bobbie and Crystal Brinkley, Custer LaRue, Jerry Nelson and Jeanette Strasser.

Mrs. Virginia S. Ogilvy, clothing specialist with the U. S. Department of Agriculture Extension Service, spoke on "After a Fashion?"

Religious Education Programs to be Given

MONTEREY - The Highland County Weekday Religious Education Council will conduct programs on Wednesday, May 17, at Millwood Presbyterian Church for Snowwell Elementary School students and on Thursday, May 18, at Monterey Presbyterian Church for Monterey Elementary School programs. The programs, to which the public is invited, will begin at 7:30 p. m. each night, with Miss Charis Hannah as the teacher.

The Phospor 50 spacecraft was streaking toward the planet Jupiter ahead because the first one made attempt to escape the solar prison.

And, according to the Rev. Robert L. Hennessee, pastor of Warm Springs Presbyterian Church, the chapel has "struggled to carry on a ministry to the Bacova community, but for various reasons, the ministry has never been a very satisfactory one over the years."

Some years ago, two noted elders of the Presbyterian Church in Bath County - Walter Farnsworth of the Hot Springs church and the State Sen. Charles Loving of the Warm Springs church - deeded the chapel to the Lexington Presbytery.

Efforts have been made in the past to revive lagging interest in Bacova Chapel. In February, 1971, the Warm Springs session decided to make one last concerted effort "to develop a ministry in Bacova that would be truly Christian and truly Reformed," the Rev. Mr. Hennessee said.

But success wasn't forthcoming, and in June 1971, the chapel committee, composed of Alfred Hicks, Mrs. Emma Swearingen, Kenneth Agen, Marvin Pursley, M. L. Dalton and Elmer Hurt, unanimously decided to recommend to the Warm Springs session that this ministry be discontinued for lack of interest.

Normally, only 10 to 12 persons participated in worship services at Bacova Chapel and sometimes attendance dropped as low as four or five, the Rev. Mr. Hennessee said.

Then, a group of interested Bacova residents approached the Church Extension Committee of the Lexington Presbytery about the possibility of the chapel being conveyed to a group in Bacova for the purpose of a community center, with the stipulation that no religious services of any type could ever be conducted there without the expressed approval of the presbytery.

The extension committee studied this request for several months, exploring in depth the need for a chapel in Bacova in light of the numerous churches in close proximity to the community.

Their ultimate conclusion was that "no valid Christian and Reformed ministry could be carried on in Bacova or that it was needed" since the area and Bath County in general already had more churches than the population actually demanded.

The committee's unanimous recommendation to the Lexington Presbytery, approved at its April meeting, is that the property be conveyed to the corporation of Bacova residents seeking a community center with the following stipulations:

--No religious programs of any kind be conducted there without the expressed approval of the presbytery, and,

--If the corporation or successor ever fails, the property shall revert to the presbytery.

When asked why the presbytery insisted on these stipulations the Rev. Mr. Hennessee said this was done "to protect the community from any undesirable groups or persons from gaining foothold in Bacova in the name of religion that would bring a blight on the community and out of a deep desire for this physical structure to serve the fine people of the Bacova area in the best possible manner."

—NOTICE—

MONEY For Consolidating Bills
MONEY for Spring Needs
MONEY For Auto Repairs
MONEY For Any Worthwhile Purpose

CALL OR STOP BY

FRANKLIN FINANCIAL SERVICE, INC.

Main Street, Franklin, West Virginia
Telephone 358-2592

LOANS $50.00 TO $500.00

"CASH IN A FLASH"

THIS MAIL HACK served the Hightown-Blue Grass Star Route in the early part of the century. The mailman is Robert Whitelaw, who died during 1918, and who was the father of Clyde and Eugene Whitelaw of Monterey and John Whitelaw of Ft. Howard, Md. The date of the picture is unknown, but this reproduction is from a postcard dated Aug. 25, 1907.

THE YEAR IS UNKNOWN but this picture was obviously taken in the early 1900's—the era of derbies and Panama straw hats for men and dusters for the lady travelers. The people in the early touring cars may have been passing through Monterey since the autos are equipped with spare tires and luggage. The flag on the front of the then Hotel Monterey might indicate a holiday. One clue for older residents might be the white picket fence, long gone from the present Monterey Hotel.

Bath Supervisors Will Meet With Planners on Zoning

WARM SPRINGS Efforts to enact a zoning ordinance for Bath County, which have lain dormant for the past few years, were renewed during Tuesday's meeting of the county's board of supervisors.

At the suggestion of Supervisor John M. Trimble, the board agreed to meet informally with the county planning commission on Monday, Oct. 2.

The idea of countywide zoning for Bath was first proposed about 10 years ago, and the planning commission was charged with drafting an ordinance for the supervisors' consideration, Supervisor Chairman Roy M. Cleek recounted.

However, he went on, the planners suggested "a more elaborate ordinance than the supervisors wanted" at that time. The matter has since remained unresolved, and the supervisors and the planners apparently have not been able to agree on a zoning ordinance to serve Bath County.

There has been some agitation, particularly among residents of the developed area along US 220 from Warm Springs southward, to enact a zoning ordinance before the county is marred, in their opinion, by uncontrolled and unsightly development.

On the other hand, there is a feeling, especially strong in the rural, undeveloped eastern half of the county, that a zoning ordinance would result in a land owner losing some of his rights over his property. Supervisor Stuart L. Hall, who represents Williamsville District, said a zoning ordinance would pose a hardship on property owners of modest means, who would have to fill out paperwork should they wish to alter the use of their property.

He suggested that any zoning ordinance enacted for Bath County be tailored to fit the needs of the individual magisterial districts. His district, he pointed out, is almost entirely agricultural.

Mr. Cleek conceded that "we need zoning now more than we did" several years ago. The determining factor is Virginia Power and Electric Co.'s plans to construct a $263-million pumped storage facility on Back Creek and Little Back Creek in western Bath County.

Besides bringing added tax revenues into the county's treasury, the project could well place considerable demands on the county's housing, sewage and school facilities, the supervisors were told.

The construction phase, which could take two or three years, may well bring as many as 500 families into Bath and Highland counties, both of which suffer from an acute housing shortage, said Dr. Malcolm Tenney Jr., district health director.

He said he seemed to think many of the construction workers would bring their families into the two counties, straining the counties' school and sewage facilities. "It could be a disaster," he warned.

A trailer court with several hundred trailers in it is a "very distinct possibility" for either Bath or Highland, Dr. Tenney said.

While the supervisors Tuesday held the view that the Vepeco project would be quite disrupting as Dr. Tenney predicted they agreed that the dam construction is likely to have a considerable impact on Bath County, particularly in such areas as housing and schools, and that steps should be taken to prepare the county. One of these ways, it was suggested, would be to enact a zoning ordinance.

Meeting Planned To Get Doctors For Eastern Bath

WARM SPRINGS The eastern half of Bath County, which hasn't had a resident physician in some time, now stands a chance to get medical service.

They are about to hire two doctors to serve Millboro, Logan and Craigsville under the Federal Health Services Corps program by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Dr. Malcolm Tenney Jr., district health director, told the county board of supervisors Tuesday.

A public meeting is scheduled for 10 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 2, at the Upper Elementary School in Craigsville to discuss the project, which Dr. Tenney said "probably the best opportunity the area had had to get the badly-needed medical service."

The two jobs, HEW would pay $10,000 a year to the Millboro and Logan areas. The two rural areas would be compensated with a stipend of $10,000 a year. The county would pay for medical services, and pay for a $10,000 annual fee. Dr. Tenney said.

Recorder

465, Thursday, September 14, 1972

l Meet

POST

ning

where the county is marred, in their opinion, by uncontrolled and unsightly development.

On the other hand, there is a feeling, especially strong in the rural, undeveloped eastern half of the county, that a zoning ordinance would result in a land owner losing some of his rights over his property. Supervisor Stuart L. Hall, who represents Williamsville District, said a zoning ordinance would pose a hardship on property owners of modest means, who would have to fill out paperwork should they wish to alter the use of their property.

He suggested that any zoning ordinance enacted for Bath County be tailored to fit the needs of the individual magisterial districts. His district, he pointed

Wel-
Jr., ld the rvls-duled
Sept.
etary
cross may op-ed to tical
ould
Mill-
rea, reas
pub-
th-pay mal

the developed area along US 220 from Warm Springs southward, to enact a zoning ordinance before the county is marred, in their opinion, by uncontrolled and unsightly development.

On the other hand, there is a feeling, especially strong in the rural, undeveloped eastern half of the county, that a zoning ordinance would result in a land owner losing some of his rights over his property. Supervisor Stuart L. Hall, who represents Williamsville District, said a zoning ordinance would pose a hardship on property owners of modest means, who would have to fill out paperwork should they wish to alter the use of their property.

He suggested that any zoning ordinance enacted for Bath County be tailored to fit the needs of the individual magisterial districts. His district, he pointed

He
man wou
the cour cilt
he w
A
hund dist
Bath
said
Wh
held proj
as I agre
is H impa larly and shou count was a zon

Get Doctors for Eastern Bath

WARM SPRINGS The eastern half of Bath County, which hasn't had a resident physician in some time, now stands a chance to have medical service.

Plans are afoot to hire two physicians to serve Millboro, Millboro and Craigsville under the National Health Services Corps sponsored by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Dr. Malcolm Tenney Jr., district health director, told the County Board of Supervisors at a meeting Tuesday.

A public meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 10, at the Upper Elementary School in Craigsville to discuss the project, which Dr. Tenney says is "probably the best opportunity this area had."

supervisor Chairman Roy M. Cleek recounted.

However, he went on, the planners suggested "a more elaborate ordinance than the supervisors wanted" at that time. The matter has since remained unresolved, and the supervisors and the planners apparently have not been able to agree on a zoning ordinance to serve Bath County.

There has been some agitation, particularly among residents of the developed area along US 220 from Warm Springs southward, to enact a zoning ordinance before the county is marred, in their opinion, by uncontrolled and unsightly development.

On the other hand, there is a feeling, especially strong in the rural, undeveloped eastern half of the county, that a zoning ordinance would result in a land owner losing some of his rights

Bath County Besides bringing additional revenues into the county treasury, the project could meet considerable demand for county's housing, schools, school facilities, the supervisors were told.

The construction project could take two or three years and may well bring as many as 100 families into Bath and Highland counties, both of which are suffering from an acute housing shortage, said Dr. Malcolm Tenney, district health director.

He said he sees many of the construction projects would bring their own problems to the two counties, such as the counties' school facilities. "It could be a disaster," he warned.

A trailer court with a hundred trailers in the area is a distinct possibility in Bath or Highland,

out, is almost entirely agricultural.

Mr. Cleek conceded that "we need zoning now more than we did" several years ago. The determining factor is Virginia Power and Electric Co.'s plans to construct a $263-million pumped storage facility on Back Creek and Little Back Creek in western Bath County.

Besides bringing added tax revenues into the county's treasury, the project could well place considerable demands on the county's housing, sewage and school facilities, the supervisors were told.

The construction phase, which could take two or three years, may well bring as many as 500 families into Bath and Highland counties, both of which suffer from an acute housing shortage, said Dr. Malcolm Tenney Jr., district health director.

He said he seemed to think many of the construction workers would bring their families into the two counties, straining the counties' school and sewage facilities. "It could be a disaster," he warned.

A trailer court with several hundred trailers in it is a "very distinct possibility" for either Bath or Highland, Dr. Tenney said.

...supervisors Tuesday to with int

re t
of

At the suggestion of Supervisor John M. Trimble, the board agreed to meet informally with the county planning commission on Monday, Oct. 2.

—

The idea of countywide zoning for Bath was first proposed about 10 years ago, and the planning commission was charged with drafting an ordinance for the supervisors' consideration, Supervisor Chairman Roy M. Cleek recounted.

n
t e
o
o
e s

However, he went on, the planners suggested "a more elaborate ordinance than the supervisors wanted" at that time. The matter has since remained unresolved, and the supervisors and the planners apparently have not been able to agree on a zoning ordinance to serve Bath County.

There has been some agitation, particularly among residents of the developed area along US 220 from Warm Springs southward, to enact a zoning ordinance before the county is marred, in their opinion, by uncontrolled and unsightly development.

On the other hand, there is a feeling, especially strong in the rural, undeveloped eastern half of the county, that a zoning ordinance would result in a land owner losing some of his rights over his property. Supervisor Stuart L. Hall, who represents

Bath Supervisors With Planners on

WARM SPRINGS Efforts to enact a zoning ordinance for Bath County, which have lain dormant for the past few years, were revived during Tuesday's meeting of the county's board of supervisors.

At the suggestion of Supervisor John M. Trimble, the board agreed to meet informally with the county planning commission on Monday, Oct. 2.

The idea of countywide zoning for Bath was first proposed about 10 years ago, and the planning commission was charged with drafting an ordinance for the supervisors' consideration, Supervisor Chairman Roy M. Cleek recounted.

Meeting Planned To Get Doctors For Eastern Bath

However, he went on, the planners suggested "a more elaborate ordinance than the supervisors wanted" at that time. The matter has since remained unresolved, and the supervisors and the planners apparently have not been able to agree on a zoning ordinance to serve Bath County.

WARM SPRINGS The eastern half of Bath County, which hasn't had a resident physician in some time, now stands a chance to get medical service.

Plans are afoot to hire two physicians to serve Millboro, Cobden and Craigsville under the National Health Services Corps sponsored by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Dr. Malcolm Tenney Jr., county health director, told the Bath County Board of Supervisors in a meeting Tuesday. A public meeting is set for 7:30

Plans are afoot to hire two physicians to serve Millboro, Cobden and Craigsville under the National Health Services Corps sponsored by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Dr. Malcolm Tenney Jr., county health director, told the Bath County Board of Supervisors in a meeting Tuesday. A public meeting is set for 7:30

Bath County.
Besides bringing added tax revenues into the county's treasury, the project could well place considerable demands on the county's housing, sewage and school facilities, the supervisors were told.

The construction phase, which could take two or three years, may well bring as many as 500 families into Bath and Highland counties, both of which suffer from an acute housing shortage, said Dr. Malcolm Tenney Jr., district health director.

He said he seemed to think many of the construction workers would bring their families into the two counties, straining the counties' school and sewage facilities. "It could be a disaster," he warned.

A trailer court with several hundred trailers in it is a "very distinct possibility" for either Bath or Highland, Dr. Tenney said.

While the supervisors Tuesday held the view that the Vepco project would be quite disrupting as Dr. Tenney predicted they agreed that the dam construction is likely to have a considerable impact on Bath County, particularly in such areas as housing and schools, and that steps should be taken to prepare the county. One of these ways, it was suggested, would be to enact a zoning ordinance.

However, he went on, the planners suggested "a more elaborate ordinance than the supervisors wanted" at that time. The matter has since remained unresolved, and the supervisors and the planners apparently have not been able to agree on a zoning ordinance to serve Bath County.

There has been some agitation, particularly among residents of the developed area along US 220 from Warm Springs southward, to enact a zoning ordinance before the county is marred, in their opinion, by uncontrolled and unsightly development.

On the other hand, there is a feeling, especially strong in the rural, undeveloped eastern half of the county, that a zoning ordinance would result in a land owner losing some of his rights over his property. Supervisor Stuart L. Hall, who represents Williamsville District, said a zoning ordinance would pose a hardship on property owners of modest means, who would have to fill out paperwork should they wish to alter the use of their property.

He suggested that any zoning ordinance enacted for Bath County be tailored to fit the needs of the individual magisterial districts. His district, he pointed